

1999 SMALL BUSINESS PROFILE: VERMONT

By any measure, small businesses are critical to the economic well-being of Vermont. They create new businesses (and the new jobs that go with them); bring new and innovative services and products to the marketplace; and provide business ownership opportunities to diverse (and traditionally underrepresented) groups. These contributions are clearly established in the statistical portrait contained in this Small Business Profile compiled by the U.S. Small Business Administration's Office of Advocacy.

Number of Businesses. In 1998 there were 19,980 businesses with employees, of which approximately 97 percent were small businesses (fewer than 500 employees). The number of small businesses with employees decreased by 0.2 percent from 20,000 in 1997. There were also 38,000 self-employed persons in 1998. . While there is some overlap between these two groups (firms with employees and self-employed persons), a rough calculation puts the total number of businesses at 57,980. (Sources: U.S. Dept. of Labor, Employment and Training Administration; U.S. Dept. of Commerce, Bureau of the Census; U.S. Dept. of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics)

Women-Owned Businesses. There were 13,000 self-employed women in 1998, representing 34.2 percent of total self-employment in the state. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Labor, Bureau of Labor Statistics)

Minority-Owned Businesses. According to the latest figures available, there were 747 minority-owned businesses in 1992, including 139 Black-owned businesses; 351 Hispanic-owned firms; and 274 firms owned by Asians, Pacific Islanders, American Indians, and Alaskan Natives. (Data may not add to the total because an owner may be a member of more than one minority group.) Of these businesses, 209 had employees, with employment totaling 1,100. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce, Bureau of the Census)

Business Turnover. In 1998, 1,900 new employer firms were formed, 14.6 percent fewer than the number formed in 1997. There were 2,600 business terminations in 1998, a 3.5 percent decrease from 1997. Business bankruptcies totaled 100 in 1998, a 46.3 percent decrease from 1997. (Sources: U.S. Dept. of Labor, Employment and Training Administration; Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts; U.S. Dept. of Commerce, Bureau of the Census)

Employment. In 1996, businesses with fewer than 500 employees accounted for 150,900 employees, or 67.0 percent of the state's 225,200 non-farm private-sector employment. Small-business employment was concentrated in the following sectors; agricultural services, wholesale trade, and retail trade (see Table 1). Small businesses added a net total of 3,400 employees between 1995 and 1996, accounting for all private non-farm employment growth in the state (see Table 2). The industries with the largest percent increases in employment among small businesses were: food and kindred products; depository institutions; and fabricated metal products (see Table 3). (Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, Statistics of U.S. Businesses)

Recent figures show that small firm job growth has continued. According to data prepared for the SBA's Office of Advocacy by Cognetics, Inc., non-farm businesses added 18,500 net new jobs in the state between 1994 and 1998. In almost all industries, the most prolific job creators were firms with fewer than five employees. (Source: Cognetics, Inc.)

Small Business Income. There is no single measure of small business profitability because firms may operate as sole proprietorships, partnerships, or corporations. A partial measure — non-farm proprietors' income — totaled $1.1 billion in 1998, an increase of 7.4 percent from $1.0 billion in 1997. (Source: U.S. Dept. of Commerce)

Finance. The SBA's Office of Advocacy ranked the 21 banks in the state that filed "call reports" with federal banking regulators on the basis of dollar value, number, and percentage of small commercial loans (under $1 million) outstanding on June 30, 1998. (See Table 4 for the top-ranking small-business-friendly banks.) In addition to these banks, small businesses seeking loans should consider lenders that participate in the SBA's loan programs (so-called "preferred" or "certified" lenders); for a list of these lenders, call the Small Business Answer Desk at (800) 827-5722. Small businesses looking for qualified investors can also turn to the Access to Capital Electronic Network (ACE-Net).
