The declaration covers the primary counties of Benton, Fayette, Hardin, Haywood, Hickman, Houston, Lewis, Macon, Madison, McNairy, Montgomery, Perry, Shelby, Sumner, Tipton, Trousdale, Wayne and Williamson and the contiguous counties of Carroll, Cheatham, Chester, Clay, Crockett, Davidson, Decatur, Dickson, Gibson, Hardeman, Henderson, Henry, Humphreys, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Marshall, Maury, Robertson, Rutherford, Smith, Stewart, and Wilson in the State of Tennessee; Lauderdale in the State of Alabama; Crittenden and Mississippi in the State of Arkansas; Allen, Christian, Monroe, Simpson and Todd in the Commonwealth of Kentucky; and Alcorn, Benton, DeSoto, Marshall and Tishomingo in the State of Mississippi.

“Businesses that suffered economic losses as a result of the disaster and want to apply for low-interest loans from SBA are urged to do so before the November 7 deadline,” said Frank Skaggs, Director of SBA Field Operations Center East.

Loans are available up to $1.5 million for small businesses that suffered substantial economic injury from the disaster. These working capital loans may be used to pay fixed debts, payroll, accounts payable and other bills that could have been paid had the disaster not occurred. The loans are not intended to replace lost sales or profits.

The interest rate on these loans is 4 percent, with a maximum term of 30 years. The SBA determines the amount of economic injury and the terms of each loan based on the financial circumstances of each borrower. The SBA determines eligibility for the program based on the size and type of business and its financial resources. Loan amounts and terms are set by the SBA and are based on each applicant’s financial condition.
